Suzanne Finstad

Vice President, Food Safety and Quality Assurance, Poultry Division

Tyson Foods

Suzanne is Vice President, Food Safety and Quality Assurance at Tyson Foods, Inc. She is responsible for leading the Food Safety and Quality Assurance team members within the poultry segment.

In this role, Suzanne provides thought leadership and strategy, including policies and programs designed to ensure regulatory and specification compliance, drive continuous improvement, as well as ensure technical support to the sales team in managing customer expectations. Her team works collaboratively with the business to identify and mitigate risk to the brand and consistently deliver to expected food safety and quality metrics.

Prior to her current role, Suzanne held several positions related to regulatory compliance across the Tyson enterprise.

Suzanne currently serves as a member of BRC Global Standards' International Advisory Board and North American Technical Advisory Committee.

Suzanne has been with Tyson Foods for more than 20 years in a number of technical and administrative positions. She earned her Bachelor of Science degree from Texas A&M University and her Master of Science degree from the University of Arkansas.
