Nicky Strong

Consultant

Womble Bond Dickinson

Nicky is a highly regarded non-contentious regulatory lawyer with a particular focus on food and drink product compliance, advertising and marketing and consumer law.

She was actively engaged in the implementation process around the EU Food Information Regulation, working with clients on the new product information requirements, and, in conjunction with a leading UK hospitality industry trade association, developing and delivering a practical online guide to allergen labelling requirements to food businesses by way of UK-wide workshops.

She is currently working with clients on Brexit-related issues, including the impact on the UK's current food safety legislation, and other product-specific regulations.
