Alfredo Villalta

Food Safety Manager, Latin America and the Caribbean

Subway

Alfredo is from Belize and graduated from the University of Florida with a BSc and an MSc in plant physiology.

Alfredo has worked for vertically-integrated fresh food purveyors such as Del Monte in quality management, food safety and research & development.

He has spent the last five years in the quick service restaurant industry, and now leads the food safety management for Subway in Latin America and the Caribbean.

In his current position he manages the food safety vetting of new suppliers and development of current suppliers across all categories for ~4,500 restaurants in 38 countries.

In addition to supplier management, Alfredo is involved in restaurant food safety and working with NGOs, foundations, universities and development agencies that support the development of smallholder agriculture in the region.
